THE GREAT DEBATE. Our recent English papers give us the full account of the great debate on the Reform Bill from the night on which Mr. Gladstone moved the second reading of the bill—the 12th of May—till the 20th. It will be recollected that the contest ran through another week, but from the speeches given in the Times it would appear that the principal men spoke during the first week of the debate. Mr. Gladstone in moving the second reading delivered an address which covers nearly a page of the Times. One of the best points in his speech is probably the argument that as the House of Commons had been gradually fitting the working man for the exercise of the franchise, it was illogical as well as unjust to refuse him the position for which he had been prepared. "Parliament," said the Chancellor of the Exchequer, " has been striving to make the working classes fitter and fitter for the franchise; and can anything be more unwise and more senseless than to persevere from year to year in this plan, and then blindly to refuse to recognize its legitimate urshot-namely, the increased fitness of the working classes for the exercise of political The proper exercise of that power depends upon the fitness of those who are to receive it. That fitness you increase from day to day, and yet you decline, when the fitness is admitted to give the power. This course appears about as rational as the process of a man who incessantly pours water into a jug or basin, and wonders and complains that at last it overflows." Mr. Gladstone was, however, not content with showing the advantages which Parliament had placed before the working man in bringing into existence, by the abolition of the paper duty, the penny newspaper, in increasing the facilities for education, and in establishing for his especial use the Postoffice savings banks-the Chancellor of the Exchequer was not content with resting the working man's claims on his general fitness; he showed that five-twelfths or nearly one-half of the total income of the country belonged to the working classes, and yet he said they were put off with oneseventh the electoral power. Mr. Glad-et me's position has been repeatedly attacked on the ground that it led to nothing sbort of universal suffrage. On this subject he thus speaks:—" Perhaps I may be told that my argument goes too far. I have already said that in my opinion a further enfranchisement would not be attended by danger to the State. That, however, is an opinion I cannot expect Parliament to accede to, and though I believe some further enfranchisement would not be dangerous, I am to great lengths in that direction. Changes the community, I do not believe that it would

The genius of our country and the be right to place that temptation within their history of our institutions dictate and re-progress, therefore, the changes should be made." Mr. Gladstone, after making a severe and irresistible onslaught on Mr. Lowe for describing the working classes as "ignorant, drunken, yenal, violent" which provoked the latter gentleman to a heated reply, concluded thus-"I do carnestly intreat and conjure the House on both sides to remember that it is not enough for us now to say

We are ready to entertain the question of Reform with a view to its settlement.

Enough and more than enough there has been already of bare, idle, mocking words.

Deeds are what are wanted. I beseech you to be wise; and, above all, to be wiss in Lord Grosvenor, as we were informed by telegraph, moved the celebrated amendment. There was not much in the speech. It went to show that Earl Russell and others of the present Government had previously entertained the views that Parliamentary reform was inseparable from a redistribution of seats. He appeared to be very much burt Flint Muskets, Fowling Guns, and at the "abuse" with which, he said, the newspaper press had assailed him, and expressed his indignation that Mr. Bright should charge him with being connected with a "dirty conspiracy." Lord Stanley seconded the amendment, and made, as he always does. a clever speech. His principal point was that although the extension of the frandesirable, it should not be consummated before a redistribution of the seats, had taken place—a proposition which brought out the crushing logic of John Stuart Mill to the following effect:-'If the Legislature created by an extended franchise were better for all other purposes would it not be better for this one also? If it could be trusted to govern us, if it could be trusted to tax us, if it could be trusted to legislate for us, could it not be trusted to revise its own Constitution? Was that, of all things in the world, a task in approaching which experience justified us in believing that legislatures in general, and British Parliaments in particular, would be rash, headlong, precipitate, subversive, and revolution-Why, to him it seemed that a Parliament which would not be cautious in anything else might be depended on not lightly to trifle with the very springs of its own existence." There were two propositions which the opponents of the bill put forth that met with equally skilful handling from the great political economist. It was said that the working classes if they had a much increased power would overturn the constitution, and it was also said they possessed 25 per cen voting power already in the borough con-stituencies. If this 25 per cent. Mr. Mill rgued, gave the working classes so large a roice in the legislation of the country as the opponents of the bill contended, how was it that these working men persisted in not shaking the institutions of the country? If they did not possess any perceptible power then it was an injustice that should be rectified. Our space will only admit of quotation from Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, who of course was in the Opposition. Speaking of democracy he said:-"Sire I am not one of those who have an absolute horror of democracy, and can only speak of it in the language we apply to something monstrous and abnormal. I reognise democracy as one of the genuine and legitimate forms of national polity. Like very form of government, it has its defects and faults. But it has also merits of its own merits identified in the history of the world with marvellous achievements of individual genius, of national energies, of passionate devotion to the public cause. I would even here undertake the defence of our Anglo-Saxon colonies from much that has been said against them. But democracy seems to me esentially the Government that belongs to societies in their youth, and in which the habits of men, even more than their laws produce a certain equality of manners and education. There is no special form of Government adapted to every varying community in different epochs of its existence but if there be a country in the world i which democracy would be a ruinous experiment, it is a country like England." BY THEM A LADY CAN, IN A FEW minutes, shape any article of wearing apparel, including the GORED DRESS, BASQUINE, SACK, POSTILLION, ZOUAVE, GIRDLE, APRON, PANTALOONS, VEST, &c., to fit perfectly without trying on.

The System is Mathematically perfect, bence it removes all anxiety regarding the fit of a Dress. There will be no ALTERING—TAKING UP or LETTING OUT, which not only injures the material but destroys the proportions and often ruins the Dress. It is not only exact, but so clear and simple that any person can learn in an hour to cut any garment.

How many ladies of limited means could dress better could they SAVE THE PRICE OF THE MAKING OF A DRESS, which they can do by the use of these MODELS; and how much use-less anxiety would be saved by the wealthy and most fastidious were they certain that the dress being made would fit to please them. It would if cut by this system.

Is it not pleasant for mothers to be able to cut, without the least trouble to themselves, all the little Jackets, Pantalons, Dresses, Aprons, etc., while the children are happy at school or at play. Ladies, just try to realise pourselves being able to cut, after a few hours' attention to this System, every style of GORED DRESS to fit perfectly without the aid of a pattern or of trying on, and every style of Basquine Cloak, Circular Cloak and all other Cloaks, and indeed every article of wearing apparel to fit ev ry size, from the babe to the largest person, and the cutting to be a delight instead of a trouble. Realise this, and then see if you can get along without these Models.

BIRTH.

In this city, on the 1st instant, the wife of Mr Charles Adolph Alisky, of a son. MR. AND MRS. CHARLES KEAN have broken off their Boston engagement abruptly; the cause assigned being a sore throat on the part of Mr. Kean. It is understood in inner theatrical circles, however, that the real difficulty was of a different character. The stars have drawn very poor houses during their engagement, and a good deal of ap-Cathcart yielded, but the audience would not; the applause was kept up, and even the entrance of Mrs. Kean, in the sleep-walking scene, could not quell it. At last the tragedian yielded; Lady Macbeth retired to appear no more that evening, and Mr. Cathcart came forward to bow his acknowledgments. All this threw Mr. Kean into a very great passion; he played through Macbeth in a rage, and swore he never would appear again in Boston in the play in which he and his wife had been so onsulted. The tragedy had been amounced for repetition, and the manbeen announced for repetition, and the man-ager saw fit to refuse to withdraw it; the tragedian brought his engagement to a close without a farewell benefit; and henceforth Boston will have as unsavory a place in his memory as it held in that of his father.—

NEWMARKET RACES-The one thousand guineas day at Newmarket on the 19th April drew a large attendance. The Times of the 20th says :- Repulse (purchased by the Marquis of Hastings after the Leger from Mr. Jackson) was the coming filly, on whom 2 to 1 was laid at the Rooms, and nothing else declared to be in it. The field was small, and Bayonette, a more from the French stable, was the only one besides the favorite really backed for money. Jennings was, indeed, as nearly condident as the Danebury people were, and if the mare had been more kindly she would in all probability have won. As it was, the race was confined to her and the favorite, the former hanging so much on Lord Hasting's mare that it was impossible for Grimshaw to run straight, and Repulse won, ridden by Cannon, after a close struggle, by a short head. It was hardly 2 to 1 on her, however, and her friends must have been rather nervous for their investments a quarter of a mile from friends must have been rather nervous for their investments a quarter of a mile from home. Repulse is a fine, lengthy, dark bay mare by Stockwell, bred by Lord Derby, and, of course will now be a favorite for the Epsom event, for which Bayonette is not entered. The betting on the course was in favor of "Delight" for the Chester Cup, and "Rustic" for the Derby.

JUST AND GENEROUS—Wells, Fargo & Co. have exhibited as much wisdom as liberality in rewarding Stephen Venard and his associates, who displayed so much heroism in their encounter with the stage robbers, We learn from the Nevada Gazette that on Satlearn from the Nevada Gazette that on Saturday evening last $3,000 was paid to the Sheriff's party by the Agent of Wells, Fargo & Co. at that place. Venard was offered the whole amount by his companions, in consideration of the conspicuous part which he played in the affair. He certainly was entitled to the larger portion of the reward, if not to the whole of it; but his gengrosity proved equal to his courage, and he petitively declined the offer, declaring that he would accopt only his fair proportion. However, the matter was finally adjusted by awarding $1500 to Venard, and dividing the remaider $1500 to Venard, and dividing the party, making $3000. We suspect that the party, making $3000. We suspect that the pluck evinced by Venard and his associates on this evinced by Yenard and his associates on this occasion will have a rather discouraging effect on "road agents," and that stage robberies will henceforth be exceedingly rare on Wells, Fargo & Co.'s routes.—S. F. paper.

EDWIN FORREST .- This great tragedian now performing at Maguire's Opera House, San Francisco, does not appear to create so favorable an impression as was expected.

Forrest, says: Mr. Forrest's delication of Lear was not so good as to reduce it to the nature of a reading, and would have shown to greater advantage had Shakspeare been acted, and not an unconnected series of bursts of passion strung together for the purpose of surfeiting the andience with a slar tragedian, who monopolized the action and diverted the intention of the great author.

Dead-Lock at the Treasury—The officials police, and Government appointees were all notified yesterday on applying for the monthly salaries that the Treasury Exchequer was empty. The banks, it appears, have refused further credit to both colonies without proper gnarantees. The Assembly provided ways and means which, in the opinion of that body, after due deliberation, were the most expedient to meet the exigencies of the Colony. The Council, however, in their more celightened wisdom rejected all the Ways and Means Bills, and the Assembly in their turn have not as yet provided any Bill of Supply, nor authorised the borrowing of any money. It looks as if the crisis had at length arrived.

SAN FRANCISCO, 31st May-At about 8:30 their engagement, and a good deal of applause has been given to Mr. Cathcart, an actor possessing the youth, grace and force which Mr. Kean lacks, who has taken leading parts in support of the stars in their tour around the world. This is not to the taste of Mr. Kean, who is proud, jealous and selfewilled as was his father, and he saw fit to forbid Mr. Cathcart going forward in obedience to the enthusiastic call of the audience with comparatively slight injuries, not extended the same stars in about an hour were entirely extinguished dience to the enthusiastic call of the audience with comparatively slight injuries, not exatter his delivery of McDuff's passage at the close of the fourth act of "Macbeth." The confederation question is hotly disputed in Nova Scotia. THE CORNHILL ROBBERY. Disclosuree of a Thief

(From the Sunday Gazette.)

The young man, Caseley or Scotty, who was sentenced to fourteen years' penni servitude the other day for having robbed Mr. Walker the jeweller, of Cornhill, has been favoured with the distinguished opportunity of parading his wickedness before, the public in a highly enjoyable fashion Ilis appearance as a witness in the case of Walker, the robbed, against Milner, the maker of the safe that was not thief-proof, must have caused him enjoyment sufficient to correct the bitterness of at least seven of his fourteen years' punishment. But notwithstanding the humiliation every honest man must feel at the spectacle of a thief in the Court of Queen's Bench, commanding breathless attention from a crowded court, filled by the fame of his evil deeds, scarcely a man would fail to be anxious to hear with a fall of the bouse had been under the surveillance of the age in the describing how Mr. Walker and all in the house had been under the surveillance of the age in part of this or the sister Colony, at the levest free Port prices. Particular attention is paid to the selection of goods, for the sid a party of five of the robbers repaired to the premises at ten minutes past six on the evening of Saturday, the 4th of February, seid a party of five of the robbers repaired to the premises at ten minutes past six on the evening of Saturday, the 4th of February, 1865. The occupants had not then left for the night, but the offices on the second floor were empty, and to these, three of the robbers at once ascended by means of the common staircase, and there took up the first position, the other two remaining in the street to watch and give signals. At twenty minutes to eight the signal was given by the confederates outside that Mr. Walker's foreman, who appears to have been the last on the premises, was gone, and their operations were at once commenced. The three robbers concended in the house first went down to Sir Charles Crossley's floor, where, for pastime or practice, they opened the safe. Having thus effected a lodgement against the real point of attack, they distributed the duties of the night. Of the two thieves stationed in the street, one was to be on the watch lest Mr. Walker or any of his people should return to the house, while the other was to keep guard over the police, and give warning whenever any constable approached the shop. Inside, one of the gang sat upstairs, in Sir Charles Crossley's arm-chair, at the window of the second floor, to correspond with the sentries in the street, and the signals of these men he communicated by means of a string to his com-Drinks 1236 cents. 3m worthy the perusal of all who value the preservation of their teeth and wish to guard against the many and tormenting evils to which those useful members are subject. Many valuable hints are given throughout the book as to the various means of preserving the teeth and gums in a healthy condition, and of arresting in many cases permanently the progress of decay which may have already set in. The little work is evidently written by men of long experience in their profession, and who are thorough masters of their subject, and as such may be knownly recommended. Extract from the Monas Heruld, January

THE TEETH.—A very comprehensive little nunicated by means of a string to his com-ades below. One of these, placed in a hole rades below. One of these, placed in a hole half-way between the shop and the tailor's room, handed up auch instruments as were wasted for use, the other, who happened to be Scotty, "did the work." The first proceeding of the operators was to "test" the safe in which the booty was scured, and this experiment was conducted by the insertion of a thin wedge of steel into the almost imperceptible chink left between the door of the safe and its side. Supposing a wedge holds when so driven, it is taken as evidence that the operation is practicable, inasmuch holds when so driven, it is taken as evidence that the operation is practicable, insamuch as something or other is clearly yielding to pressure and that pressure may be grafually and dexterously increased up to the point desired. If the wedge, instead of holding, rebounds from the plates and flies off, it is proof that the aflair cannot be managed, or, at least, not in this manner. In this instance the wedge held, and so the operation was continued. First, a little har was inserted to release the wedge, then another wedge a little larger to release the bar, then another bar a little larger still to release the second wedge, until after ten or a dozen such steps the chick was opened sufficiently for the introduction of "the alderman," The instrument thus dignified in name, is a long iron

THE TEETH—A very comprehensive little treatise on the teet has just been forwarded to us by the well-known dentists Messis. Gabrille, Adopting the lan usage of the preface we may say that in this somewhat pretensious age, at a time when publications of this kind are numerous, a short, unassuming treatise emanating from a firmed long standing containing nothing but that which is immediately to the purpose, will not, we believe, prove unacceptable. The little work contains many valuable hints which will be found eminently useful for the allevation of the miseries of toothache, until the more substantial aid of the professed dentist can be procured. Extract from "Cumberland Pacquet." 2nd January, 1864—As may be seen by our advertising columns, Messis, Qabriel supply artificial Teeth and Gums on their patented system, irrespective of distance or climate. They are equally efficacious in the cure of tumours, burns, scalds, glandular swellings, ulcerous wounds, rheumatism, contracted and stiffjoints. These medicines operate mildly and surely. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT—Stomach and Kidneys. Between these two organs there exists a close and intimate relation which is demonstrated by the wasting which occurs in all diseaves afflicting the kidneys. The disordered stomach is often the first index of renal irregularity. Holloway's remedies used at that invastomach is often the first index of renaturegu-larity. Holloway's remedies used at that junc-ture would cut short many a serious and fatal attack. They act with wonderful efficacy on every organ of secretion, but especially do they regulate the stomach, liver and kidneys, in re-storing their healthy functions, and casting, out any obstructions or impurities. It is necessary for the obstruct to be well rubbed, its the small for the cintment to be well rubbed into the smal of the back twice daily, when it is absorbed and greatly augments the purifying and salutary in fluence of the Pills.

Holloway's Ointment,—Wounds, Scalds, Burns, and Irritating Sores.—The peculiarly mild, soothing, anti-inflammatory power exerted by this Ointment strongly recommends its use to all persons who have charge of children. Accidents will occur in the nursery in spite of the greatest caution and utmost vigilance. The scratch, the burn, or the scald, treated early with this Ointment, assumes no anary aspect, and never long tortues the little sufferer, whose very cry excites each bystander's compassion and pierces the parents heart. Every nurse should consider this invaluable Ointment an essential to a well appointed nursery. The Ointment is applicable to any ore, whatever its character. HOLLOWAY OINTMENT AND FILLS.—Fistu las, Files, Exceriations, and Strictures, are appendily relieved and ultimately removed by applying this Ointment after fomentation with warm water. Persons suffering from these scourges of the human frame should arrest their progress at once, for it is both insidious and rapid. Fistulas, if long allowed to go on unchecked, not only weaken the nervous system, but destroy life. The sooper these inestimable remedies are used the more certain is success; yet none should despair, hopeless cases have often yielded, and the sufferer has been saved a painful death. In excoriations, a few applications of this healing Ointment effect a cure, while the Pills, conjointly used, are especially beneficial in relaxing and removing strictures, whatever their situation or duration.
